The School Arts Magazine

FIRST published in September 1901, "prepared under the eye of Fred Hamilton Daniels, Guild Master, in consultation with Henry Turner Bailey, State Agent for the promotion of industrial drawing, Massachusetts, and James Hall, Supervisor of Drawing, Springfield, Massachusetts."

Its design, "to promote by every legitimate means the progress of sound art instruction and the development of public taste in all matters relating to the applied arts." It stands for beauty in American life.

For forty-one years SCHOOL ARTS has tenaciously held to the ideals of the first inspired leaders in art education whose courage and perseverance have accomplished much for the pleasure and profit of its subscribers, and for a greater appreciation of beauty and utility among the school children of America.

SCHOOL ARTS is still published by the same house which first brought out the magazine in 1901 . . .
